“ She wasn't only my mommy but my best friend. We did everything together. I saved her life once. She had a surgery and the doctor sent her home to die. I took her home with me and nursed her back to health. When her Dr saw her at her first appointment after that he turn white as a goast. Not only was she alive she was walking on her own. He said I was a really good nurse. I miss you mommy. I wish I could have nursed you back to health this last time. Till we meet again.
